Argument of Counsel in the Kingsbridge Opening.

SMUGGLING-WHAT CONSTITUTES INTENT

The Commissioner of Jurors' Salary.

Comptroller Green and His Removal of Officials.

Yesterday George Brews was arrested and brought before Commissioner Osborn on a charge of having smuggled into this port 128 silver watches, 127 gold watches and four imitation gold watches. He was committed in default of $5,000 bail.

The trial of Charles and Mary Fisher, charged with complicity in an assault upon two German girls in a nouse kept by them in Twenty-sixth street, occupied the whole sitting of the Court of General Sessions yesterday. To-day the case will be submitted to the jury.

In the case of John Gillen, who claims to have been elected Comptroller of the city of New York in the fall of 1872 and who has, with a persistency worthy of a better late, lought for the establish ment of his claim in the courts up to the present time, Judge Donohue yesterday dismissed all proceedings. The would-be Comptroller must seek redress in some higher quarter.

No action was taken yesterday in the matter of the application of ball for Coroner Croker, indicted by the Grand Jury for the snooting of McKenna on election morning. The Court of Oyer and Ter-miner was crowded in anticipation of a forensic tournay between the prosecuting officer and the defendant's counsel, but in the absence of the stenographer's minutes, not yet transcribed, the matter stands over for a day or two. In the meantime Mr. Croker remains in the Tombs.

August Major, who was indicted for an outrage upon one Eliza Collius on the 1st of October last, in Blackwell's Island Hospital, in which she was an inmate at the time, and Major an orderly to the Commissioners of Charities and Correction, stationed on the Island, was yesterday put upon his trial in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Barrett. The gravamen of the charge was denied, and the case having been submitted to the jury that body, after a short deliberation, returned a verdict of not guilty. The prisoner was then dis-

Ex-Judge Waterbury, codefendant with Mayor Havemeyer in the suit for libel instituted against them by Mr. John Kelly, made application yesterday to Judge Donohue in Supreme Court, Chambers, for a further extension of ten days to answer. The application was granted.

THE KINGSBRIDGE ROAD OPENING

Pursuant to adjournment, the motion to confirm the report of the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the matter of the Kingsbridge road opening came up for further argument yes terday in Supreme Court, Chambers, before Judge Donohue. A great many property owners were present, accompanied by their respective connsel. Very little was said for a wonder, however, considering the array of lawyers in attendance, but this was doubtless owing to the fact that the subject had been pretty well exhausted, and that the main bject of the adjournment was to hear the reply of Assistant Corporation Counsel Andrews to the objections interposed by Mr. William Tracy to the onfirmation of the report on Saturday last, when

Mr. Andrews began by stating in brief the two objections raised by Mr. Tracy, the first being that the resignation of two of the original commis ers was not in the form prescribed by statute, and that the two commissioners appointed in their places were not regularly appointed, and, therefore, had no authority to act, and the second, that the map filed by the Central Park Commissioners, in pursuance of the act of 1874, was not the same as the map presented to the Court by the Commissioners on the confirmation. As to the first orjection he insteed that the new Commissioners were regularly appointed; and even if the resignation of their predecessors was not exactly in accordance with ers was not in the form prescribed by statute. appointed; and even if the resignation of their predecessors was not exactly in accordance with the mode prescribed by statute, that this fact could only effect the assessments, and that, by a recent act, the assessments could not be vacated on any such ground. Regarding the question of the two maps, he said they only varied eleven inches in a distance of 6,000 feet, and this he regarded as a very filmsy objection. In conclusion, he urged the confirmation of the report, on the property owners.

he arged the confirmation of the report, on the property owners.

Mr. James C. Carter referred to the act passed by the last Legislature in regard to the opening of Kingsbrudge road, and insisted that one of its chief objects was manifestly to cure any technical defects that could be raised in regard to previous legislation, and he further arged that the act itself was a recognition by the Legislature of the validity of the appointment of the new commissioners.

Mr. Kitchel claimed that the report should be confirmed, if for no other reason, because the matter had been in abeyance too long already. The original proceedings began in 1855, and property owners were getting tired of waiting. Fully eightenths of the property owners were anxious for the confirmation. Touching the technical objection as to the appointment of commissioners he cited the decision of Judge Lawrence in the matter of the opening of Lexington avenue as conclusive on this point and a complete bar to any such objection.

objection. There being nothing further to say the papers, books and maps were passed up to Judge Bonohue for his examination. He told counsel that it hely had any further points to submit they were at liberty to do so at any time within a week, and, after that time, he promised as early a decision as possible.

THE GLOVE SMUGGLING CASE.

The case of the United States vs. three trunks, containing kid gloves and other articles valued at between $4,000 and $5,000, was resumed yesterday in the United States District Court before Judge Blatchford. The claimant of the goods is Sampson Lewey. It is alleged by the government that the claimant brought the goods into this port from Europe with the intention of amuggling them, and, therefore, the government seeks to confiscate them, while, on the other hand, the that he never was engaged in any smuggling transactions whatever and that it was his design and purpose to enter the goods at the Custom House in the usual manner. The facts of the appeared in the HERALD. Yesterday when the case was called the counsel for the government put on the stand a Custom House officer, who tes-tified that after the trunks containing the goods steamer City of Chester he, with the brother of the claimant, Robert Lewey, and another person, were standing in an office at the dock, when the claimant, in the presence of Robert Lewey, offered the officer money if he would allow the trunks to pass through. This closed the case on the part of the government, when counsel for the claimant addressed the lury, briefly adverting to the facts as he expected they would be proved in evidence. He pointed out the lact that the claimant had purchased the goods in Hamburg, in the name of M. Bernstein, his partner; that he had sinpped them under a bill of lading; and that they were brought to the United States, under invoice, to be entered at the Custom House, and sold in the regular course of trade. Counsel read the deposition of the claimant, who testified therein that on the Sunday he landed in New York from the steamer he made no effort to get his trunks. They were to be kept on board the steamer until Monday, when he was to go down to the whari and have them sent to the Custom House officers to get the goods through, nor had he done so himself; he gave a bond for the goods that had been selzed, and they were consequently released; he had imported goods into New York since 1871, and had never imported any goods on which the duties had not ocen paid; he never had any intention to definant the United States government; never gave his brother any authority to act for him in relation to these goods. The invoice of the goods, as purchased by the claimant in Hamburg, was here offered in evidence by counsel were standing in an office at the dock, when the flouss, and sold in the regular course of trace to the course of tra invoice of any part of the goods in controversy. Judge Blatchford said he would admit the invoice for what it was worth. If it turned out to be forged, or got up for the purposes of this trial, that would be another question, and would be doubtless subject to comment by counsel when they came to address the jury. Counsel read the invoice. It was in German, and the declaration aftached to it was in English. The deposition went on to say that when the claimant elt Liverpool, owing to the conjusion at the landing stage, which had been burned some two or three days previously, he was not certain that the trunks had been put on board the steamer, and he did not again see them until his arrival in New York. When he got to New York he told a man connected with the steamer if he came across three tru ks, marked in a particular way, to keep them until he came down on Monday morning, when he would have them removed to the Custom House, so that the duties might be assessed on them. He did go d wn on Monday morning to the dock for that purpose and lound that his trunks had been seized by a Custom House officer as unclaimed biggage. The officer was in the act of breaking open the trunks, when the claimant called upon him to desist, and offered him his keys to open them. No one was in erested in those goods but the claimant nimself. This case derives some importance from the fact that it is the first, or one of the first, under the new act of Congress of 1874, which allows a claimant, in a proceeding of this description, to show that he had no intent to enter the goods at the Custom House for the payment of duties after having landed them. A considerable amount of testimony having been given, the evidence on both sides closed. The case was adjourned till this morning, when the Court will hear an argument on a question raised by counsel for claimant to the effect whether, admitting that the claimant did the acts which the government officials allege he did, tilere was an intent on his part to defraud the government by the int

A QUESTION OF SALARY.

Taylor, Commissioner of Jurors, vs. The Corporation.—This case was argued yesterday before the Chief Justice and Judges Daly and Loew, in the Court of Common Pleas, by Messrs, Hall for the Commissioner and Smith

The question presented was, whether the Commissioner of Jurors should have the salary which was fixed for the City Judge at $10,000, or the later one, which was raised for the City Judge to $15,000. It was argued for the plaintiff that the law said he should have a saiary at the same rate as the salary of the City Judge, paid to him quarterly by the Comptroller; that the very word 'rate' was a term implying fluctuation, and was 'rate' was a term implying fluctuation, and was so used in commerce and on 'Change; and the word 'pad' was used instead or "fixed;" that whatever was paid to the City Judge from time to time should be paid to the Commissioner of Jurors; that the Commissioner was to a very large extent a judicial officer; ne determined upon the fitness of persons for jurors; he exercised judicial discrimination in examining them and making out lists; he acted with other judicial officers in making up lists, and hearing and determining penalties and offences, and it was very proper he should receive a judicial salary. It was like the salary given to the Surrogate, which was to be the same as that of the Lugislature should reduce the salary of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas; and if the Legislature should reduce the salary of the Judges of the Court of common Pleas; and if the Legislature should reduce the salary of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas next year—"which heaven forbid," said the counsel—to $7,000, or any lesser sum, Mr. Comptroller Green would be the very first man to claim the operation of the principle for which Mr. Taylor now claims against Mr. Green, and Mr. Green, would be right in doing so. The salary of the Commissioner followed the City Judge.

On the side of the city it was said that the Comptroller merely desired judicial construction, and that when a statute was passed regarding a salary

On the side of the City it was said that the Comp-troiler merely desired judicial construction, and that when a statute was passed regarding a sainty it determined a sum existing at the time of the statute. There could not be such a thing as an elastic statute. To which it was answered that if the Legislature had intended to fix a permanent sum it would have said so, for the salary or the City Judge was perfectly well known. The idea was to make his

COMMON PLEAS-SPECIAL TERM. Comptroller's Appointment and Removal of Court Officers. Before Judge Larremore.

When Comptroller Green entered upon the duties of his office in 1871 he removed various officers from the Court of General and appointed others in their places. Among those removed was Mr. Quigley, but and brought suit for his pay. A demurrer was made to the companit, and on the case being argued yesterday Judge Larremore overruled the demurrer, on the ground that the supreme Court, General Term, had decided that the act under which the Comptroller claimed the power to remove and appoint officers in the various courts was unconstitutional. A verdict was accordingly ordered in the plaintiff's layor for $1,056 being the full amount claimed. Meantime the Comptroller has been paying his own appointees, but according full amount claimed. Meantime the Comptronet has been paying his own appointees, but according to the above ruling he will have the old officers to pay, most of whom, like the pialmin in the present action, disregarded his order of removal.

These operations continued until the defendant had paid $500. The plaintiff demanded $410 more, which the defendant reused to pay, claiming that he had already paid too much. The plaintiff thereupon brought suit, claiming the $410 as a balance due. The defendant suit, claiming the $410 as a balance due. The defendant desired the justness of the claim and demanded a return of $400 of the money paid to plaintiff, on the ground that to that extent the so-called payments were loans of money.

The case attracted considerable attention among the dental irraternity, many of whom were in court. Nine of them took the stand and explained to the Court and jury the science and operations of dentistry, with the charges customary on the various dental operations, and the value of fining a single tooth was variously estimated by these dental experts according to the cnaracter of the case and the size of the cavity from $5 to $250, and some of the dentists testified to receiving as much as $500 for regulating a set of teeth. After much conflicting testimony and an elaborate summing up by the respective counset, in which the low priced dentists were characterized on the one side as quacks and the bigh priced decities on the other as extortionsits, the case was given to the jury by Judge McAdam in a clear charge analyzing the facts and laying down the law applicable to the case. The jury, after an hour's absence, returned a verdict for plaintiff for $228.

ESSEX MARKET POLICE COURT. Raid on Disorderly Houses.

Before Judge Kilbreth.

The late transfer of the police captains throughout the city appears to be aiready productive of some good, as evidenced by the number of disorderly houses which were raided upon last night in Canal street and vicinity. These nuisances have increased of late in this neighborhood, and Captain Ullman, who has just been transierred to the Tenth precinct, made a descent on six of the vilest deus on Tuesday night, accompanied by a number of his officers. The houses raised on were three in Canal street, kept by Emma Smith, kosa Hartman August West and Louis Saiber; one in Bayard street, kept by Sophia Nelson; one in Bowery, kept by Nelhe Brant, and one in Canal street, kept by Frederick Anderson. The last named was discharged for want of evidence, but all the remaining prisoners were held in $1.000 bail for trial on charges of keeping disorderly houses. Fitty-eight unfortunate girls were arrested and looked up in the Tenth precinct station house, where they made the night indeous with groans, curses, prayers and signs of repentance.

They were all arraigned before Justice Kilbreth, at Essex Market Police Court, and the scene presented was pithable in the extreme. Many of the prisoners were young and evicently unhardened in vice, but the majority of them bore the unmistakable traces of dissipation and brazen enjoniery. The Judge held them all in $1,000 bail to keep the peace for six months.

THE BOARD OF POLICE JUSTICES.

Meeting Vesterday Afternoon.

TILTON VS. BEECHER.

A Day for the Trial Fixed.

A large attendance of lawyers and others was present yesterday in the Brooklyn City Court, in anticipation of the taking up of the action brought by Theodore Tilton against Henry W. Beecher for alleged seduction of Mrs. Tilton.

Ex-United States Attorney General William M. Evarts, who has been retained as senior counsel for Mr. Beecher, appeared for the first time, with Counselor Thomas G. Shearman, John L. Hill and General Benjamin F. Tracy. On cenal of Theodore Tilton there were present Ex-Judge Fullerton. Ex-District Attorney Samuel D. Morris and General Roger A. Pryor; Mr. Beach, the other counsel being absent. The people wno have thus far attended Court with the expectation of seeing Mr. Beecher were disappointed. The plaintiff occupied his wonted seat by the side of his counsel, and, knitting his lofty brow, scowled scornfully about him as he took in the details of the scene in Waich he was so conspicuous a figure. Judge Reynolds called the case of Tilton vs. Beecher, and as there was no response he said-

Well, gentlemen, have you nothing to say ?" Mr. Morris replied, "We are ready, your Honor."

Mr. Evarts-We are ready so far as the attendance Mr. Evalue—we are ready so far as the attendance of counsel is concerned, and so far as we are now advised as to the arrangement for the attendance of witnesses for some day presently to be assigned by the Court. We are now waiting the disposition of a pending matter.

Judge keynoids said he thought it was understood that a day should be fixed for the trial in the December term. If the counsel would then agree upon any day, the Court would set apart any time that may be agreeable to the counsel on both sites.

Mr. Evarts remarked that the Court was aware

Mr. Evarts remarked that the Court was aware that they were awaiting a decision on the appeal. Judge Reynolds said that he had been in consultation this morning with his associate in the General Term with regard to that appeal, and by Friday, at the lartnest, he thought they would be ready to announce their decision.

Mr. Evarts said that it that decision should accord with what they believed to be the rights of their chents, then there would be no impediment to proceeding to trial in December: if it should be adverse, then their action would be governed accordingly.

Judge Reynolds thought either Monday or Tuesday of the first week of the December term would be the best selection for the trial.

Mr. Fullerton hoped the trial would not go beyond the first Monday in the term; and Mr. Evarts desired it to be understood that they would take the direction of the Court in the matter; so far as the arrangements of the counsel are concerned they anticipated no impediment.

Mr. Evarts asked what was the power of the Court in regard to prolonging a case from term to term, and the Judge replied that he had never had occasion to examine that. The terms here commenced on the first Monday or each month and extended through the month.

Mr. Evarts asked what was the power of the Court, but special legislation has been made with the term, but special legislation has been made with regard to this in the courts of New York.

Judge Reynoids said he was not aware of any provision in the act bearing upon it.

Mr. Evarts said it there is no provision His Honor might find some difficulty in getting through with the case in the term which begins December 7.

The Court then fixed the day of trial for Decem-

on the part of the prosecution is commented on very tree; y and is likely, in a certain contingency, to provoke an agitation of the case anew. In a conversation with Mr. Miller and his brother gesterday the Herald prepresentative was informed that they will procure the affidavits of all the parties relied on by the prosecution in rebutting the testimony for the defence and have them published, thus completing the work lett-anninished. THE IRISH RIFLE TEAM.

Departure of Major Leech and other Riflemen Yesterday in the Russia-The Escort Down the Bay.

Rifle Team-viz., Mesers. Keily, Bagnall, Crowley, Walker and Waterhouse, together with Mrs. Waterhouse, left New York yesterday for home on the Cunard steamship Russia. They were escorted by a committee of the National Rifle Association from the Fifth Avenue Hotel to the foot of Twenty third street, North River, where they were received by another deputation of leading citizens on board the Quarantine steamer Nelson K. Hop. kins, which conveyed the party to the Cunard dock at Jersey City. Among those present on the Nelson K. Hopkins were General Green, General Thompson, General Knox, Colonel Church, President of the National Rifle Association; Colonel Wingate, President of the Amateur Rifle Cluo; Coiner Gidersleeve, Colonel W. H. Reynolds, of Rhode Island; Lieutenant Fuiton, Messrs, Canfield, Sanford, Lailard, Alvord, Bruce and Crouch; General M. T. McManon, General Molyneux, General M. T. McManon, General Molyneux, General Wardade, General Wardand Quarantine Commissioner Judd. Just previous to the arrival of the steamer at the Cunard whar, a number of speeches were made, wishing Gosspeed to the intending voyagers and congratulatory of the kind feelings which had been engendered by reason of the late contests. Major Leech responded in peculiarly fitting terms, and spoke in hearty tones of the grand reception and hospitality that had been extended to himself and the other members of the team. He promised on behalf of the firsh people that the American rifemen, on their visit to Ireland, next summer, would not that they would be greated by the warmest of hearts, and that every possible pairs would be taken to impress them with the affection feit by the Irish for their American cousins. In conclusion he said he hoped that the rifles of either people would never be turned against the other, but that the riflemen of both sides would forever be found waring with each other side by side in a spirit of emulation to obtain the greatest meed of success in such bloodless battles as the one just fought.

Colonel Whe rish, in responding to a toast to the Amateur Rifle clino, stated that both teams had determined in the mane to shoot merely for the honor of the champtonship, without any stake being put up. They lett, he said, that by so doing the character of such contests would be neightened, besides preventing any imputation being brought against any of the members of either team that they were "professionals." Possibly, he thought, some commemorative cup or badge might be arranged for, but that would be all that would be all that would be allowed. Specines were also made by Mr. Waterhouse, General McMahon, General McQuade, General Green, General Thompson and others. Wingate, President of the Amateur Ride Clue; Colone: Gildersleeve, Colonel W. H. Reynoids,

THE BLEECKER STREET TRAGEDY.

John Wilson, the Frenchman who was reported in yesterday's HERALD as having deliberately shot his son and then attempted suicide at No. 145 Bleecker street, late on Tuesday night, appears now only to have wished to kill himself. He returned to his home shortly before two o'clock on Wednesday morning, and discovered, as he beneved, evidence of criminal conduct on the neved, evidence of criminal conduct on the part of his wife. Grieved and shocked, and feeling that his honor had been wantonly sacrificed, he drew a revolver with the purpose of kinding himself. He fired three shots, the first of which entered his body just above the navel, the second struck his left hand, and the third, missing him, inflicted a slight wound on the head of his son Frank, seven years old, who had been asleep in the room. Captain McDonnell, of the Eighth precinct, and a patrolinan were attraced by the shooting, and they took the injured man and boy to the station bouse in Prince street. From there they were sent to Bellevue Hospital.
